

IGNORANCE

5/25/12

I'm often amazed at what baffoonery is around me. And in what quantity! Forget the quality, the more the merrier is the norm. Nothing is glorified more than the pursuit of gain. Whether it be in profit (capital), girls, clothes, shoes, houses you get the point. The more you have the more you're respected. And that's not even the real between the lives thing. When your broke, like toxic chemicals you're avoided and when your stacked... Like sand on the beach people come plentiful. In prison you can really have only so much, but exactly how much ignorance can one carry?

I talk to fellas here and there and only a select few know the actuality and gravity of our plight. The lowest in the totem pole of class (or does the proletariat give us a run)... But alot don't see that, what they see for sure is that t.v and what they see on t.v affects them. And more, consumes their time with no one can recover. It is said the average person will waste 3-5 years of their time watching t.v! Just imagine in prison... C... M... G! (To use the slang of the view era). And what is the average time to get a associate degree... 3-4 years? But Kim Kardashian really has a hold on peoples interest, but most prisoners can't even site a passage from the P.L.R.A! Damn Clinton! Yet this girl "Kim" hasn't done a damn for prisoners, she aint even good "eye-candy" but the many debate. Most just like the sense or urge to know and if one is not affected personally they don't care. People get killed by police, oh, it happens all the time. A desensitization has covered the average prisoner, no sense of purpose, no spark of life, better yet NO spine, people that where bad motherf in the streets... reduce to a docile, opiated test dummies. A live experiment some get paid abundantly for! World issues... forget it... country issues... forget it. We need to start paying attention to the real issues at hand. What's next for the CA hunger strike? What new laws are going to be affecting us? Which are detrimental to us? Why aint we getting this, that? Theres little talk of such things, wich is sad! As a 22 year old prisoner it infuriates me... men... where are you? Start talking, debateing, for crying out loud. ARGUE! It don't matter about what, as long as that what has to do with us prisoners and our surroundings. Spark a conversation, agitate and seek truth... the reality of things.

It's not easy to learn when all you've been told/thought was a program to follow. How to deeply use that brain/mind? Think stuff through and don't let up. Get to the where, where

What, who and why. Learning is a difficult task and being stupid and ignorant way too easy. Why should you care... cause your sitting in that cell that's why. Time is on your side and not theirs (prison officials). Read and ask for advice to those whom you think are knowledgeable. don't think no one knows it all.. well christian zealots will say Salomoni did. But as the adage goes IF everybody knows something we all know alot and that is where our power lies.

[This witting is mainly for prisoners but even more applicable to citizens who find themselves in "Minimum Security"....the streets]
