GREETINGS!

January 20, 2013

My thoughts as of this moment are very pleasant. Naturally, although my physical is being taken across rigid and sharp gravel I somehow hold strong to my mind!

Nevertheless, if I am not 'mindful', the grotesque visions and objects reflected by the light that travels and shine to help us understand what's being perceived then one will ultimately "lose" what is the most precious gift given- mind, reality, truth!!!

I've been pursuing to re-connect my internals with my externals in order to 'learn' better prosperity. And in trek to getting this job done sometimes one can be inflicted with such a abnormal pain to a extent that it becomes formidable.

As things seem so simple to me on the surface I later come to realize that it is equivocal to others. So the confusion of this cause and effect stagnate 'our' progress. Still though, with the proper understanding of my environment I manage to eventually overcome or circumvent what being seeming to be a nemesis.

My experiences always give me more direction. And watching or 'knowing' the struggles of other persons, places, and things makes me more resilient. I was taught that "LOVE" is a elevation of ones understanding, so once no understand a atom from creation then you should 'understand' "all" that it springs forth. Notice I say should. Because there are some things that are 'needless' for us to even waist time on figuring out!!!

Meanwhile, I have been learning and studying the arabic language plus going to school to finally get my GED. And all of this fatigues me to keep in mind this is what 'normal' world 'workers' go through ever day...

Also, my law research is coming along to a point I can actually see myself representing other individuals on a sophisticated level.

Well, that is all for now, I will try to post material more often including my thoughts.

Peace, love, and happiness.

In Struggle!
In solidarity!
