I Never Thought

By Debra Egan © 2013

I never thought when I was born, I end up in jail
I never thought I had talent, writing poems in my cell.
I never thought about the consequences when I did what I did,
I never thought that they would, take me away from my kid.
I never thought I'd ever like this woman named Shannon,
I never thought I'd do her wrong and she'll still be standing.
I never thought my son, would be born with a birth defect,
I never thought about my future, or what can happen next
I never thought that the judge, would give me 21 years,
I never thought I could shed, so many tears.
I never thought what this wicked life, would bring to me,
I never thought me fighting for my freedom, will ever be.
I never thought I will be doing alot of jail time.
I never thought I'd be stressed out, about to lose my mind.
I never thought for a minute, my son would be without his dad,
I never thought of precious memories that me and my son had.
I never thought I would cause my family so much pain,
I never thought other people in my city, thinks I'm insane.
I never thought I could be a threat, and cause any danger,
I never thought I'd be feeling, the wrath of God's anger.
I never thought I'd miss out on years of my life,
I never thought that people would tell me wrong is right
I never thought my family, would stand behind me in court,
I never thought I'd had to ask strangers for support
I never thought going to prison, was a consequence I bought.
I never thought I'd get caught, but I did because I never thought.
