

January 30, 2013 #47

It is not always easy to...

Life is often difficult, at least it seems so to me. It is not always easy to do one thing without the old cause and effect law to bring about circumstances we may never have intended.

As I work with men here who want to learn I just naturally become friends with most of them. The thing is, not many of them are friends with each other. There are lots of "clicks" here. When a man declares himself friends with one he becomes the enemy of others. There is no Swiss in prison!

I am neutral. Period. My only click is my family. But even there there has been hurt feelings. I am neutral. Period.

:) :0 :)

Sometimes when we seek to honor one person we can, without meaning too, dishonor another by doing so. Life is not easy. But the responsibility is ours. Lets be careful not only of what we say, but how we say it. I sometimes forget that others are just as sensitive as I am. :)

My book project goes well. My job is highly profitable. My family is steadfast. My friends are awesome beyond belief. I was just blessed with Stuff. :) I feel rich. :) Life is good today.

Please be kind to each other and think before you speak. God bless and keep you in His perfect peace.

russ