

I Will Blog When I get Out

B.T.B wrote me a letter and informed me that I can continue to blog with the site once I'm out. I'm so happy that they have that as an option because I look forward to sharing my successes with all of you that view this site. Men in prison change and we do good things when given the opportunity and given a chance...I can't speak for everyone so let me say this "I" have changed, I will do good things if given the opportunity, and I will do amazing things if given the chance.

I want those who view my blog to extend their advice, words of wisdom, useful information, resources, and feel free to hold me accountable. I embrace constructive criticism, help, and guidance in the right direction...my best thinking got me put in prison for 11 years...I could use some advice (Ha-Ha)

I'm grateful for BTB, all of you, and look forward to sharing with all of you now and once I leave prison. In the mean time keep in mind I am always looking for mentors, a positive support system, information on job training programs and community resources, and encouragement. Thanks to you all.
