RE: CALIFORNIA STATE SLAVE TRADE

Dear Concerned Reader:

If you have not heard, The State of California has changed the famous Three Strike return to slavery law as of the date of November 06, 2013.

However, you have State Personnel Officials in numerous County's throughout the State of California outright refusing to acknowledge the voices and will of the people of the State of California. The November 06, 2012, Proposition 36 was enacted to release none violent Three Strikers like myself, with [no] prior rape, murder, or other sexual related crimes, no assault on a police officer or an assault on a fire fighter.

However, judges along with special prosecutors assigned to these none violent Three Strikes cases that meet the qualifications of Proposition 36 are now outright abusing their inherent authority and power in the interest of the State of California, and furtherance of maintaining slave making legal conduct and judicial course of action in the criminal court rooms throughout the State of California.

As long as State Officials are able to maintain the tax paying Citizens of the State of California paying to house and hold State Prisoners to pay off a debt to the people of the State of California, then these State Officials will continue to participate in human trafficking in modern day slavery for financial gain.

These are words from a California State slave being housed and held by California State Officials to pay off an illegal past prior date and a current 2003, conviction for Petty Theft with a prior.
