

#134 Some Lindell-Family Photos
created 24 March 2013

"Christmas - 1997 or 98, at my Brother's In-Laws. For some reason (that I can't - remember) I was wearing a Christmas - present Parka and my glasses!"

He always was a big guy & often smiled, but slipped into religiously paranoid/psychotic moods.

"'Mama-Dear' and I at the 'In-Laws again, but during the summer!"

You can, here, clearly see the facial features that reveal Donald to have Native American ancestry. His father was 1/2 Lakota/Sioux.

Obviously he loved his mom, maybe the only link of his to an outside person.

The quoted comments next to each photo are what my step-father, Donald K. Lindell, wrote on the back of each photo. He's the father of Josh, my ex-1/2 brother who testified on me. - As I noted in post #102, Donald was extremely violent & abusive towards us, mainly due to his mental illness, but partly due to his religious training. I looked him up after I came to prison, mainly to see if my memory & my mom's stories were valid. They were. But I found I could not hate nor blame him. He died, alone, in the middle-of-nowhere Montana, of complications from diabetes, not long after his mom died of the same. A friend of his wrote & told me so after his death.

It's curious to me how I killed someone with his first name, build, age, & habit of wearing flannel shirts. of 1
