Thank you for hearing my voice, feeling my pain. I greatly appreciate & encourage your comments. Dreaming about being wrongfully accused and/or incarcerated isn't uncommon, because in one form or another, we're all doing time. Dreams are a manifestation of our subconscious working through some issues and giving us answers. That's why they feel so real (one of the many great mysteries of the brain). Relish in the fact that it was only just a dream, but also listen to them and be moved to act. My being wrongfully accused is no picnic (as you may know), but I refuse to let it tear me down. I'll continue to dream & live in spite of it. Your compliments are a reflection of my growth. So I return to you, don't be afraid to dream & make choices. Make a difference not only in your life, but also in someone else's, like you have mine.
