Buhogrunon: ...maybe opinionated wasn't the right word. Sometimes I don't know if your beliefs are all screwed up, or you just down half a fifth of whiskey before you sit down and write this stuff...

Eh, either way, I do appreciate hearing from you, my Jewish Liberal, gay friend.

Yeah, I'll get off the Jewish trip as I think it's kicking a dead horse. Really, I got your letters mixed up and responded to your claim that they have never engaged in genocide with a few glaringly ugly facts in a response to another recent comment you left...just look that up and get back to me. Your other excuses are just plain wrong, about the Judenstat being forced into cooperation. All trghem groups weren't forcedd into helping Hitler, they helped him cause they elieved in his plan, and were just as twisted as he was. You even had a ton of Jews fighting in his SS troops. Not just them, but you had whole regiments of different non-German nationalities fighting in the SS. Like the SS-Charlemagne was all frenchmen..you had one made of all Swedes and Scandanavians, who were disgusted with the Commies and joned Hitler to fight them.

But you had a whole Arabic/Muslim division, and evenn some Indians (like India Indians- not Native Ameriacns). eh, who cares. I wouldn't if the lies taught in shkools didnt completely twist the facts around.

Hitler was a ploycian. If he was born in Uganda, he would've p-reached the eugenic ideology to the Ugandans and led them to try to crete a master race...

You sure are sprung on Woody allen. I'm not su8re what kind of an authority he is that you quote his words verbatim to prove some type of point? almost dogmatic with you. But hey, maybe you know this one. I'm going from memory like 5 years back so the words wont be right, but I remember the general gist of what he said. (you probably know the exac words!)

He said: I wish I could believe but I can't. I'll tell you one thing that believers have that i dont, when i compare my life with theirs. They have hope. Thneir lives seem to be so much more fulfilling than m ine does and they seem to derive a comfort in a belief in the afterlife. I wish I cold believe, cause I know that i would be a whole lot happier if I did, but i canr simply believe in something solely cause I want it to be true"

You ever heard ole Woody say something like that? you seem to either have a super memory or a fgats search engine to look up stuff to try and make me sound like an idiot, so either way, I'm sure you'll know what I'm talking about.Ha!

On to this othe stuff. You don't seriously believe that the only differenmces between races are skin color do you? So you would seriously believe that if two cadavers, one African and one European were skinned and laid out on an autopsy table, that no doctor could prove what cadaver was which? There a ton of differences. Read your "authority" Darwin. He wrots a book called The descent of Man. But there are a ton of differences between races. not just biological ones either, but even DNA hardwired behavioral characteristics. I mean, even from a secularist evolutionary viewpoint, this makes sense. Its one of the anomalies in your enlightened modernist worldview.

I'm guessing that you have a little bit of college right? and you can remember something about the age old Nature vs. Nurture argument in your psychology classes? The well proven and documented fact of it is that DNA doesn't merely shape our physical characteristics but also the way we interact with people, our ambitions, our emotions, desires etc... sexual impulses (gay straight, highly active-promiscuous).

These genes are passed from parents to children. Families carry certain common traits. its obvious. Tribes and clans are a little further removed but its just an extended family. Nations and races are no different, just a little further down the line.

Here's a good ole Atheist Scientist you may like. I like all his works, although he is at odds with the establishment on more than a few points and when he's gone I doubt we'll see another of his kind occupying any college chair. E.O. Wilson. punch that up and see your liberal demagogues attack him! Ha! He's still brilliant!

But he has a way of explaining it . he calls it Gene-culture evolution theory. say if in our culture way back in the day, we stoned to death all liars, we branched off and separated from a larger culture that did not stone all liars. well over thousands of years...whatever genes that cause that behavior would slowly be eliminated from the tribe that broke away and it would 'evolve' along those lines. Over time different cultures would have altered the evolutionary pathways of different cultures. not just in killing off certain people that displayed certain characteristics..but even if a culture valued certain traits and those that embodied such traits were esteemed in that society and subsequently reproduced at a higher rate than the rest of that culture...in time whatever traits that were valued by that culture would begin to outnumber and dominate the rest. Sit down and think it out..it applies on about a million different levels.

Point is. There are differences between races. Seems like everyone gets that obvious principle except the idiot modern West. The Kurds in Iraq know they are unique. eh, I could go nation by nation, but its too obvious to even argue that each of these racial subgroups has unique strengths and weaknesses that set them apart from other groups of men. and the differences go way more than skin deep.

I can go into a black neighborhood in New York and one in California, and even though thousands of miles separate them and they have never met each other, they have more in common with how they live than they have in common with the Asian, caucasian or Mexican neighborhoods they grew up around and live near. as do the Europeans in America, South Africa, Australia or the Americas...theres a whole bunch of differences.

I'm not making a superiority argument, just saying we are different, and to an extent we can control our direction. We can become better or worse...as can any people. Or we can all blend into one and destroy any uniqueness that we do possess now. But aside from Westerners, I don't think anyone else seems to have such a mass desire to surrender their uniqueness in the world by racial suicide. I could be wrong, but I doubt it.

Maybe your right, that I look at things from my perspective that I have lived my life from, but...so do you! but I can see that I'm in the minority in my opinion, so its not ~~x~~ like I am blind to it. I have heard your perspectives argument, considred it, and just rejected it in the face of all I have seen and heard.

I know you will say I'm a racist for thinking like that. But I'm not. I hav eplenty of friends of different races, and dont think they are any less of a man than I am, or dispute that other cultures have made significant contributions to our common Human experience, I dont think thye are stupid, weak, etc...

We have something here in America wher we can swab the DNA out of our mouth and send it in and they send you a pie graph back that shows all the diferenjt ethnicities thag make you...like 80% European 20 % Native American..but it even breaks it down further like 10% Cherokee indian 5% Commanche etc.. I read an article that such tests were banned in France and declared illegal. Is that how the Secularists, the "middle grounders" the "non-extremists" express their viewpoints and beliefs? By outlawing any dissent? Tolerance..your are not the enlightenmnet!

Alrigt Woman, I'm gonna get off this typewriter for a while...take it easy over there!

Your friend,
Chris
