NO JUSTICE!

Rydellar Efron

Justice have no end, but justice aint for us,
Justice aint equal, sit yo ass on the back of the bus.
They got the constitution, say people are treated equal,
thats what they say, but thats not for black people.
Got us fighting for our lives, in a system thats twisted, taking you 15 years, just to get the conviction lifted.
wearing the same color, having you too institutionalized,
the time they gave you, really caught you by surprise JUSTICE? you say where are your rights?
they deprived you of that, so now you cry at night.
you struggle with internal demon, trying to rehabilitate, but its your third strike, now its way too late.
you file motions and appeals, but they get shot down, you proved your case, but it wont turn your conviction around.
you sit in solitude, stuck in a 2 man cell, wondering why your soul mate, isnt sending you mail,
you made a bad decision, guess this was your fate, behind barbwire gates, you try to find God and your faith.
You cry out loud to God, hoping nobody wont hear, but you doubt Him, Hes the only one you should fear.
Think about the consequence, before you do what you do, because theres no justice, for a black man like you!
