Greetings Nick! It is well appreciated that you took the time to embrace my words. I am uplifted that they caused you to reflect on things that many of us accept without critical analyses. Freedom in America has always been relative to who you are. Other countries may seem more repressive on the surface, but if you look a little deeper you may find a intricate and historic connection with the very countries claiming to have more freedom. All too often our freedoms are based on the sufferings of others.
