

A Voice Lost to the World

5.2.13

Planning Ahead.....

As I sit here, thinking about what I want and how I am going to get it. What is it that I really want.....

Freedom, but what is freedom. Is it a state of mind? Is it a feeling? Is it tangible? To me it has to be a state of mind or as I've said before freedom for me comes from within myself. I am locked away from my love ones and I am held captive from most of the things I have come to love in my short life. But today I feel free and as I plan ahead for the journey that I am on, I see the things I want to have or better said, the goals I plan on reaching.

As for most , my family is the most important thing to me so I plan on continuing to build my relationships with them. Also my recovery is very important I live a clean life today by choice.

My number one goal is education. I want to get my A.A. and then my B.A. This is very hard because this institution does not offer degree programs for prisoners. I am currently in school, working for a 20 credit Business Accounting certificate.

But with a will comes a way and I am very dedicated to this, and I feel like it will happen.

Staying focused on your path while you live in a place filled with so many obstacles is not always easy, but I like to say it is very doable. Just like if I were on that side of the fence I would still face obstacles, the only difference is that I could better insulate myself. Here I have to mentally insulate myself because I am forced daily to face obstacles. I embrace this as a good thing though, as it keeps me sharp and on edge. I stay looking forward to a brighter future and working at being a better man, for myself and my family.....

SINCERELY,
DUSTIN KELLEY

Post 3