RE: EVEN SLAVES HAVE DREAMS / blog/1607

Dear Concern users of the internet:

I was extremely baffled by the horric events that recently occurred in Boston, and as a human being with compasion for all others, my prayers are extended to all the citizens of Boston.

I wonder what would happen if my Country America moved toward a direction of total peace, and total none violence and world wide equalization of all human being, man and woman alike no matter gender or no matter beliefs?

I wonder what would happen, if my Country America did not have a political class structure, have rich or poor and everyone single individualized person were in facf socially equal to One another without Government oversight?

I wonder what would happen, if my Country men and woman opted to throw all the wepons in this Country into the sea in an attempt to eradicate and decrease violence in my Country wherein everyone lived in peace amongst each other?

I wonder what would happen if my Country America eradicated the prison industrialization complex and we lived in a society without the desire to committ crimes that we deem to be criminal offenses?

Even a slave like myself can dream, but only the wise knows the esoteric energy of dreams, thoughts, action and reality. Kind words from a 13th Constitutional Amendment slave.

SINCERLY

ALLAN TRACY GILMORE
