Dear Lindacjolly:

I'm very understanding of how your son Randy could fall into an horrific situation as the one he's now currently faced to daily live, and further, to an extent in end of who know's.

I myself being from Oakland California, and raised all over the Bay Area, have extensive knowledge an a extremely amount of insight into the life of drugs, and what drugs and those involved with drugs or people socially connected to anyone individuals involved. resolve could be. I'm sorry to inform you that Randy's life was absolutley without a doubt end resolve, was where he's now confined, or in the grave. I want you to know, I am by know means being unsympathetic towards you or your son Randy, however, I am extremely greatful for Randy's sake, and your sake as well, that Randy is still here, because believe me experience is anyone single individuals parent or teacher.

I also understand law beyond the average individual persons concept and understanding of the business of law, and see what was actually and factually legally done to your son Randy in a political form, for everyone's gain and Randy's detriment. The reason I know, is because I've been studing law for the last 10 years of my incarceration, filing-pleading-from-the-State-Courts-up-to-the-United-State Supreme Court. And it's very true, one does in fact reap what one sown and there is absolutely energy force of Karma that comes around to us all, even when we are absent to it's presence form in our lives.

You have every single reason available to be upset about how Randy was done, at the same time, realize that nothen good comes from anger that turns into hate for those who you feel has taken to [judice gestures towards Randy while acting out the role of a loyal friend in concert with others]. Now it's you and Randy and here and now, and you have to move forward and overcome this obsticle that has been place in the both of you guy's path. Keep in touch and these are words are from a friend. PS Randy should have been in a federal drug program, wherein he could receive the help he needed, I dont know what kind of excuse the others involved had, outside of being connected up with crooked politicians.
