what value is a social justice struggle, or a social justice movement, or a social justice cause, I can not live in a world with out a social justice struggle, with out a social justice movement, or with out a social justice cause, & I very much want to live in a world of social justice, I can not pass myself off as some one who does not believe in these things, my life is a social justice struggle, my life is a social justice cause, I have failed in my life's social justice struggle, & I have failed in my life's social justice cause, but I rather fail at these things, than succeed at being an enemy to myself, an enemy to my race, an enemy to my class, an enemy to the human race, an enemy to planet earth, & an enemy to ALLAH/GOD, my life is absolutely positively one of reinforcing the failues of my life, to keep me from the success that I hate, & this is what I advocate, being a friend to my humanity, being a friend to humanity, being a friend to planet earth, & being a friend to ALLAH/GOD, all of this is extremely difficult, but for me there is no alternative, & that is who i identify with, those who like me feel there is no alternative to the course that i'm on, in the hope that this identification will lead to collaboration on improving the human condition, i know the nature of the social justice struggle/conflict, & i know how social justice individuals, groups & movements have to organize themselves to deal with the confrontational & repression aspects of social justice struggle, & i hear the viewers of my blog when they say that they are not this organized, i have organized myself as a martyr advocate of social revolution, in this with all the information on my blog, my blog can be a social revolution center, which i will coordinate to the best of my ability, my individual/personal type of a organization, is a organization for a single individual, & or a organization for a small group of individuals, i watch the news on tv & i see that the world has sold out the syrian revolution, because the world says that the syrian revolution is led by extremist elements, & that the world feels it is better off with the devil it knows, the syrian dictator, than with those who it does not know, the syrian revolutionary forces, the occupy wall street movement was a similar situation, in that society sold out the occupy wall street movement, because society felt it was better off with the devil it knows, an oppressive & corrupt status quo, than with those who it did not know, occupy wall street movement radicals, with the implosion of the security state, & the complete erosion of basic civil rights, a movement greater than the occupy wall street movement is needed, the movement that is needed is a social revolutionary movement, the syrian revolution, & the unfinished american revolution are at the same stage, which is the need to organize & go forward, a social revolutionary movement will be in solidarity with the arab spring & in solidarity with the syrian revolution.
