

5/20/13

No, women aint the only one getting 'degraded'. However it's not a full on assault as women. For instance, if a woman gets raped then it'll cause 'uproar'. On the other hand when a 'boy' gets 'raped' or sexually assaulted it's looked upon as a "good thing" and it'll probably cause some five highs but that's the double standard in society.

True you must 'demand' a level of respect or else people will run all over you. People will always be "opportunists" and if they can get away with it, they'll do whatever. That's just a dominant ideology in society.

That's good you expect equality but like I said in my last response if you and your counterparts in this country get "it", what about women in other nations?

As for who's "fighting" for the men, well, I know I aint. The fact is a lot of men are "stupid" and frankly some 'aas' are just portraying the truth. I'll add there's a double standard there too. Men in Boxer briefs won't cause that much of an uproar as say women in stockings etc.

It is a good thing that people in India (both sexes) have demanded that action be taken against the perpetrators. To bad that mental cohesion isn't everywhere.

What I'm trying to get you to realize is that what fuels and furthers sexism and other types of 'degrading' things? And what will eliminate it? By the way, thanks for the response it made me not to be so "narrow" in my thinking of sexism.