

Kat,

Sabaidi, Thank-you for the comments I do appreciate it. I know I don't get much comments on my writings. But it doesn't deter me from continuing to share my work. Hey, you liked it, so I'm doing just fine. One is better than none.

To be honest Asian people rarely receive any kind of recognitions, This is a fact hard to ignore in our society. If you just sit back and observe a little, you will notice what I mean. Look on T.V. when Asian people enter into these talent shows, they are good but America seems not to vote for them, and they never seem to win. Also, in our political system Asian people in America are a after thought. The ~~politics~~ news medias always seems to mention how they seeking the African American, Latino American and women votes. But how about the Asian votes? Do we even exist? So what I am trying to say is, my writings may not receive comments because of my race, However, its Kool with me. Asian Progression must move on.

Anyways, Kat, are you Laotian? I wish I can know more about you and share with you more things about me. You can always snail mail too, if you are comfortable with that. To end, your kind words are fuel for me to feed ~~the~~^{this} flame of determination within me to continue to keep posting my work and strive harder. Thank-you so much. Best wishes to you and may you be ever bless in your endeavors.

Live As One Strong

Soujannaseng