

(Father's Day,
My son Alex's birthday)

Dear Anonymous,

Sunday, JUNE 16th, 2013

I do hope to be back online someday - I miss being plugged-in. Just try 3 days (vacations don't count) without the internet. Now multiply that times 1200... 😞

I try to stay positive, and thinking on my crimes makes me very morose. I'm sure it's public record somewhere, I fell out of Lane County on Oct. 1st 2003. I don't believe I'm that person anymore, but I lost everyone from my past. It was not good.

Jenny and I have two sons she is raising, Alex (who turns 17 or 18 today I believe... I've lost track 😞), and Nicholas who is 3 or 4 years younger... such an awesome dad I am. We also gave a third son up for adoption in 2000. I guess I've done my genetic duty - if only I'd assured they had good lives.

(Where did you find a picture of my son, and which one?)

My current interests in study are guitar and I'm trying to get a book on French grammar as well as a French/English dictionary so I can get back in practice. I'd also like to find a way to advance in studying Japanese, but that probably has to wait until I get out.

I don't read fiction often - it's tough to find books I haven't read, but I recently read and enjoyed Brandon Sanderson's 'Mistborn' trilogy. I love Jim Butcher's Dresden files, and await each new entry with baited breath.

By your "speech" patterns, as well as the expectation of seeing me online, I assume this is Israel - but if so, why stay anonymous? I kind of hope I'm wrong, Izzy always expected me to accomplish so much. I'd like it if one person still thought well of me.

C'est la vie,
Freedom
