Dear RonaGal,

Thank you for your kind comments about my postings. It doesn't matter how many words you use, the content of your words are what matter. I always answer every comment that I receive. I have no clue if you will ever read this reply, but I want people to know, that if you take the time to comment, then I will always find the time to reply. Whether this is your only response to my writings you'll ever answer, thank you.

Between the Bars, need conscientious people out there to help keep this program up and running, because it lets us know that we have a chance once we're released-and that there are people out there that care. Not just care but hear us, and voice are no longer held behind these walls silenced and ignored.

So no matter how "HORRIBLE" you may think you are with words, don't stop speaking or writing, because, I swear I used to feel that same way. RonaGal, all you have to do is look at my blogs. I am no writer, and I said it before, I hated English in school. It was my worst subject, probably why I used to skip school so much! Na'll I am just playing, or at least I hope so! :) But, seriously, I'm a horrible writer too, RonaGal, but as long as there are programs like this one I will forever write. You may need to correct it, forgive a few missed spelled words, or guess what word is suppose to be there-but, hey, as long as it's legible(Hence the typewriter!) then we're good to go. Just pay attention to what I maybe so poorly expressing.

Respectfully Yours,
