

Love Dont Live Here!

By: Delilah & Jerez

I have no life! because my soul, has lost love, in this all by myself, rain clouds from above.
should I tell you about those dark clouds within my heart or the gusty winds of my past, that rips my flowers apart.
How my life is like a flag, standing still on a pole, or the cold rain water of misery, that floods my heart and soul.
I'll tell you about the woman who has bore more kids while I'm in prison, but she love me! it is what it is.
what about the heart that bleeds, everytime I shed a tear?
what about the emptiness, that overcomes my fear?
Across the many miles, across acres of green grass, lies the unfaithful woman, who dwells on the past.
The scent of another woman, has tainted the flowers that bloom, the vineyard has no wine left, this wedding has no groom.
should I tell you how I'm in the realm of my thoughts?
or about this war, and show the purple heart I got, when I fought Nature calling me at all different, hours of the night, like a dog growling and a cat screech in a constant fight.
The moon has turned red, stars has fell to the ground,
Grimm reaper knockin on my door, like a crazy birthday clown.
The love in my heart, aint what it really seems,
cause love dont live here, like a case with no ice cream.
