

CJP

Thank you for the transcription of my many posts. I used to blame the way my life turned out on my childhood but no longer.

The only reason why I have the opportunity to write my daughter is because of the Between the Bars website. every day I serve in prison is a day farther from the drug addicted loser I was. I hope one day to be able to be apart of all four of my children's lives.

CJP I am sorry that your father allowed his demons or his false sense of pride to keep himself from being apart of your life. towards the end of our short lives the weight of our past becomes unbearable. I hope peace can be found for you as well for me.

- Paper mache father -

Being a father in prison

Its like eating Spagetti with a spoon

Its like hugging someone elses dog for comfort

Its like being a ghost

that becomes real on visitation day.

Roland 8/18/13

Thank you for your kind words.