

Possibilities

A door, no matter what it is made of a wall, no matter what it confines and a window, no matter what the view can diminish the will to be free.

A door opens and closes;
it is not a permanent bar
A wall crumbles with time, and there are ways around it A window can be shattered and the view is in the eyes of the beholder

An open door is a new world
A crumbled wall is deliverance
A shattered window is renewed vision.

Barry Williams#D10477
CSP_SQ 3EB112
San Quentin, CA 94974