Whats the Ruckus?

About a week or so ago after the MTV music awards the media, internet and social media were abuzz with and outraged at the performance of Myle Cyrus. But what the fuck are they complaining about?

How can people criticize her (myle) when the atmosphere and culture is passed in inflation with sexualization? How can media personnel say anything when women are paid to sell their bodies in pornographic films which in essence is a legal form of prostitution? How can anybody get mad at myle cyrus for only portraying what is all around her? Commercials with very provocative sexual innuendos? Beauty pageants and contests that showcase women as if they're items to be sold at a auction house?

Whats the ruckus? Dont get upset society. If people should get upset they should be upset that theres a big market that condones sexual behavior and sexual acts! Myle cyrus was just showing a reflection of what is accepted as good and mostly "fun" in a society that profits off the commercialization and sexualization of women. One need only find women selling their "virginity" on the internet for money.

IF Myle Cyrus performance was shocking then people are truly out of whack with society. What's shocking is that there is legalized prostitution houses. IF her ~~example~~ performance was a bad example to young children, than the example that video 'vixens' and other 'higher' women is a really bad example. Hopefully people in the year 3000 will look back and say our era of civilization acted more like caveman and children than the people who created atomic weapons.
