

Hey it's ur daughter destiny

Hi Destiny ♥

I'm so glad to see you baby girl. I miss you dearly! You can't imagine just how much! I pray that all is well in your world. How are you? What are you doing with your life out there? There are so many things I want to get to know about you, dotter of mine. Eighteen or not, you're still my baby girl.

Care to share some time with me and get to know the real me? Have you been watching my blog site these last couple years? I received a message on my 24 July blog "Who Am I Really" from easiesgirl, who it seems suspects that my word-play conceals the real me. What do you think Destiny? Do my blogs permit you to know me any better — or are they just too confusing, and that's why the silent treatment ensues? I will gladly clarify anything you'd like to know more about, if that's the case. All you must do is communicate with me.

Who Am I - Really, is really no different from anyone else. We're all curious and have emotional wounds to bear. Such is life my dear. But I hear that Love covers a multitude of errors. Yea, God's love sees right through it all, doesn't it? That Love is For Giving ... get it? It only took me fifty years to finally figure that one out.

Thank you for sending me a few "thinking of you" words on your birthday. I was thinking of you too sweetheart, wishing you'd write. I love you.