

9/12/13

Alexandra,

Thank you for reading my blog. It's hard to find a sympathetic ear for a prisoner. Just because you've been convicted, people tend to believe there's no chance that you could actually be innocent.

I would like to correspond with you very much, but I must respect the CODE and request that you talk to your husband about corresponding with me. Most prisoners are funny about their wives writing another prisoner.

I'm sorry to hear that your husband & I share a similar predicament. Luckily, he has you & the proof he needs to keep fighting. We've got to keep fighting like you said. I'm still trying to figure out what I can do to help myself besides put all of my faith in my attorneys. I would like any help you can provide. My mission is to get the word out about my fight for justice, and shake-up the consciousness of the people through my art work. So please share my voice with ears inclined to hear, and if you have any ideas of some places I could reach out to, please let me know.

Although I am very undisciplined, I love martial arts. I grew up trying to mimic the moves I'd seen in movies. I do know it's not true what i see in the movies but it was fun to try out. Congrats on reaching second dan:) Do you compete? And can you break boards?

I do look forward to hearing from you.

Daniel