

Maita,

Nov 1-13

I wish to thank you so much for your comment you posted on my blog. I hope you don't mind, I'm sending a copy to Dennis, as I'm sure this might release him of some anger he has toward "The Church."

It gives me hope that when I walk from this prison I'm not walking out to find myself alone in my love and worship of Christ. It's very hard to ~~live~~^{love} in a place full of hate, it's very hard to ~~live~~^{love} and include in a place that does ^{it} just as easy as you breathe.

It would be easier for me to do so, but how would that separate me from "the world" and be different. Do people hate because it's easier to do. I think they do. It's hard enough in here, without having extra disabilities. Let me name a few of mine, being white, being a gay man, who says no, and being a Christian.

I'm blessed to be on a unit that the church welcomes me, for the most part. I add that because there are still people who do not agree but ~~do~~^{may} it's not their place to say. But my greatest blessing, I get to belong to a 12 Step program, where the only ~~thing~~^{requirement} for membership is a desire to stop drinking, (or using.)

Any way enough of my sorrows, could you please pray for healing for two people. We've spoke of one, Dennis, for his cancer, and my Aunt Mimi for her heart and the Dr's treating her.

u reply I.D. X9X9-

PAGE TWO Blog Post

Maita

Nov 1st 2013

Please Allow me to Close this I.D. with A warm Thank you. Thank you, for Not Letting Societies
Bigotry to let me and Dennis know we're Not Hated.

Most of All Thank you for having the courage to speak what we both know to be true and be separate. I cried when I read your reply but my heart sang "This Little Light of mine", That's what I see you as, A light up on the hill. Thank you!!!

~~2013~~ ERRE,
Billy