Young Will, yea - it's been a lot longer than a minute! But I am glad you took a minute to drop me a few lines - let's see: in the middle of October? "Jil good comes my way", you say? Thanks giving is later this week so I pray you are feeling better about your life out there now.

My heart goes out to you young man. Imagine me in here in my tomb looking out at you caught-up in your frustrated anger: Me longing for life while you're pissed off at it. The irony has me laughing through the tears. I know exactly what you're going through: Been there and Done that. But dude! Oh god... please - please - please consider what I want to send out to you from my tomb here.) Look loved-one, I feel your pain and frustration. You're going to have to get used to it though until you accept there is no way that you will ever change everyone to your way of thinking. I just wrote Destiny a really profound message about how many rooms of reality there are in this Mansion of existence we call life. I was trying to convey that our lives are ours to do as we wish. The metaphors of the many doors in this Mansion is simply that "You attract what you think about." Imagine that! It's kinda like we live in a Mansion of Mirrors where our life is pretty much a reflection of the thoughts, desires, fears, expectations we project into the rooms of reality we actually create. How do you see your life son? If you think the world is against you - it will be. Just as if you believe that this life is full of opportunities - so be it! As a man thinketh. Mind you... not all of us see the same things in the same way - as you are well aware. It's a lot less frustrating when we allow others to live their own life as they wish son, until the time that becomes a personal liability demanding your attention. Personally, I am frequently disappointed by others not living up to my expectations of them, but

I must continue living up to my own expectations, you know? Yea, ... I wish that I understood all this before I left my family to declare war against tyranny. But I've learned a thing or two since then I can share if you care. Just ask ... I've learned much from life. I have to admit that there's much I don't know as well. Loyalty ... Responsibility ... Integrity, I've failed you all in these — and more. Yet, it means the world to me when you brighten up the room I made in this mansion. I pray you are as gracious in all of your relationships. I pray for you to follow your indwelling light, which always leads to fulfillment and happiness. I pray for you to be free from worry and anxiety, to be the fearless, wise, confident, capable being you are in Spirit. I pray for you to express and expand your god-given abilities and talents in your own unique and wonderful way. I pray for you, knowing that you are beloved of God.

Be blessed.
Live Free!

Freedom is mine, and I claim it now!

I may feel stuck trying to break a habit or change a way of thinking to which I have become accustomed. Yet I can set free any thought or behavior pattern that keeps me from my heart's desire. With compassion, I willingly release the patterns in me that cause me to feel stuck.

I break free from limiting behavior through the power of God within. I consider what is true about me: I am infused with divine power, strength, and love. I am free to be and do all I have been created for. I choose positive habits and attitudes that support my well-being and bring my talents to the world.

My God-given freedom is intrinsic to who I am. Right now, I claim my freedom, making my life all I want it to be.

As servants of God, live as free people.—1 Peter 2:16
