

12-3-13

haha 😊

I pray this epistle discovers you and your loved ones in good health and in good spirits. As I compose these words to you in response to your comment, I am in complete jubilation over the significant impact I was able to bestow upon your personal journey.

God is perfect in all He does. His inspiration speaks to us through multiple channels when we're navigating through our valley lows of life. We are blest and highly favored to be able to hear Him communicate to us, individually, through other air waves beside's directly from Him. But it's much more breathtaking when it comes from a total stranger!

The quality of your preparation will determine the quality of your performance. And just by you knowing what stage of life you're in, I know ^{HE} will grant you the wisdom you need to become a success at whatever task you set before you. No great victories were ever won without great trials.

By walking in God's love, you release a force to work in your behalf - a force that has all the appearance of weakness but is stronger than any force in existence. So when the trials of life (the world) start to overwhelm you because you appear to be weak, they will run into the unseen power of God.

I believe in you because the Christlikeness in me tells me so. Growth in our lives is not accidental but intentional; it requires effort, not only God's but ours too! We must have discipline in our lives and know that continual growth comes from everyday sacrifice.

I ^{Am} going to the library this Thursday to check out Napoleon Hill. The few quotes that you've given me has inspired me already. Thank you. I wish you Godspeed. Merry Christmas.
