

THINE EYES ARE CROSSED

by NIMARODAS

When some of "us" look at the world's problems "we" think that we have caused them. We need uncrossed our eyes, to examine the facts to uncover the truth. While at home, school, hanging out or at work, you didn't just decide to blow-up Hiroshima, Nagasaki, commit genocidal enslavement of millions of Afrikans. You didn't rob the Native people of their lives, land, their culture, cultural dignity and pride that flows with it. No, you just didn't decide to rape and pollute the world, exploit its peoples and harm all living things.

Unequivocally, emphatically, positively without exceptions, religion, government, organizations and the like are responsible for the world's ills. I am likewise concerned with why we are the way we are. Without nurturing, our self-esteem and sense of self worth has evolved poorly.

The conditioning of our lives have a very simple explanation:

1). People ~~are~~ labelled sinners from birth; 2). told to control our ideas and hormonal instinctive urges and; 3). Told to suppress our egos. This type of crippling mental indoctrination has made us weak, schizophrenic; causing us to feel insecure and thus, in many respects this internal war within us has cause us to become self-destructive. Without a true prototype, we are ^{really} unsure as to who we are and how we should behave. The proof-positive truth of that statement is the utter divisive chaos in the world. We can't even agreed on our own chaos or means of self destruction.

The individual doesn't declare war nor have you caused the near depletion of the world's resources and brought it to the near brink of destruction.

The solution to the world's problems is simply the reversing of the cause. The cause being the suspension of an individual's better judgment. The solution to this malady is to seek an individualistic solution before a collective one is imposed. To rely more on self and less on the many.

COMMENTARY(1): "Nimarodas, you have religiously stressed the empowerment of the individual. ^{Isn't} ~~Isn't~~ the empowerment of the individual in our interdependent world not divisive?"

What is divisive is the disempowered individual who is weak of which cause him to follow and blindly seek protection from the human-herd.
