2014 = first POEM - by Billy

I Listened to others most of my life
What it caused me was heartache and strife
I even poisoned so who was my wife
Thank God now, she has what she deserves, a life I just couldn't give her what I didn't have, the truth

Sitting in this cell tonight is living proof
Many nights I'd wonder, how'd I come to this point I keep ending up on that football field, smoking my first joint.

From that moment on, I knew it would be easier to hide

Just because I was so scared to admit what I was inside.

Most of my fear has gone away, because I'm living from day to day

Now I listen to others who have gone my way.
Praise God I'm no longer ashamed to be gay!

I wish though, my four stars, realized their dad has a terrible disease

Just give me a chance, would you please

All I must do now, is to give them up to my higher power in the skies

And one day may-be hear will answer my cries

This new life of freedom, come with but one price

Do what I have to, and not to roll those dice

Oh I look forward to 2014, in service, and helping others

To all of you who call me sister or brother
