

To Eleanor_Anne:

I ran across additional information you may find useful, another literary outlet for you to try, a magazine called "Cicada." Google them and check out what kind of writing they publish--to better target your writing for their pages:

CIRCADA, since 1998 with 10,000 readers (Bimonthly)

the listed URL in my book is:

cricketmag.com/22-submission-guidelines-for-cicada-magazine-for-teens-ages-14+

"[Literature] for and about teens."

(ages 14 and older)

Looking for: Fiction (humor, contemporary and historical,
fantasy/sci-fi, mysteries, novellas
up to 9,000 words)

Nonfiction (first-person experience, humor)

Poetry (humor and serious)

Pays: $0.25/word fiction and nonfiction, up to $3.00/line poems
($25 minimum)

How to submit: Send one manuscript through:
cricketmag.submittable.com

Or: Snail mail a cover letter with manuscript and one self-addressed stamped envelope, SASE to:

Submissions Editor
Cicada
70 E. Lake St.
Suite 800
Chicago, IL 60601

GOOD LUCK!

Love Dad

Please post this page to: <http://betweenthebars.org/blogs/316/>

as an additional comment to my daughter's response on the January 16, 2014 posting

Reply ID: 4rx7

I've already sent one reply, with writing instructions — this one is in direct relation to it, and should be attached as a supplemental if possible. (and she'll of course need notification of the update.)

May be returned using SASE.

Thank you