

Hi Pali:

This picture of my 51st Birthday in the visiting room is a testament of a friend indeed. It was too bad there was no cheesecake out there, but even that permitted me to talk with the fair lass with the nose-ring filling the vending machines — and tho' that may seem a trivial thing, you must understand that after 16 yrs without cheesecake, a chance to speak to a young woman was a B-day to get just the same ☺ Thank you for using your vacation time to make my day a very special one.

It is regretful that I take along so much of my affairs in here out there to the visiting room, but again: 16 yrs! This wasteland reality has captivated so much of my attention for so long, that it's a wee difficult to shift my mental gears into a non-game event. Perhaps the new-found purpose our friendship brings in disseminating and applying L. Ron Hubbard technology to ward rehabilitating enturbulated souls in here will enable me to stop dramatizing so-called winning valences and rather concentrate on the ennobling challenge to make the world a better place and being the change I'd like to see. Already I've noticed a tremendous change in my outlook and conduct.

In fact, I think that I will post the most recent cert. I've received just to show that I'm not merely killing time Thinking of Crime. Also attaching the Fundamentals of Thought for folks visiting this blog site to see what I'm studying. I pray that all is well in your world. Be blessed.

19 March

us on my the visiting