

reply Id twqk

I respect the freedom of speech this blog provides to us all. In that constitutional right, you have a venue to vent as I do. My constitutional rights to the 5th, 6th, 8th & 14th amendments to the U.S. Constitution have been violated. Indeed alot of prisoners come across as persecuted unjustly. with the high number of exonerations, the facts speak for themselves.

I was once blind but now I see. I used to support the dp until I was flung into the abysmal system. witnessing something first hand speaks volumes to judging something one knows not much about.

There is no foundation of christian values in saying killing someone brings closure. society teaches revenge with the dp. It creates more victims, re-opens wounds. the prisoners family friends are a new set of victims.

In my re-sentencing trial the victims families expressed they did not want to see me recieve the dp. over zelious prosecutors chose to seek death again. Harris co. houston, Tx.

I'm at peace with my family, friends and they all support me love me and know the injustices of my situation. This case is not a double murder case.

The hospital sufficated the second person, some 8 hours later when prepared for a operation to repair a wound. I was charged with concurrent causation. The burden of proof was shifted to the defense to prove the hospital did not make the patient brain dead, when in fact they did. The family sued the hospital and doctors for wrongful death. There are no winners in this tragic course of events.

Stereo types, labels are the american way... by dehumanizing someone it is easier to kill them. to debase them, make them a monster. fact is convicted murders who parole have the lowest re-offence rate out of all classes of criminals paroled.

This stigma is something the row must deal with constantly. What message does it send to our young, the next generation...that tic for tac, revenge is ok. this cycle fuels violence and the mentality of retribution. (another word for revenge).

the prison system was created for pennance, to reform, for the prisoner to repent. I'm at peace with my salvation, I know my God & it pains me to see my family & friends suffer.

Kelly Seiqler Tx top prosecutor has been enlightened even...in her new tv show she said " the execution dosnt bring closure, shes atended executions with victims familys, witnessed men put to death and it brings no closure. no healing.

Kelly told a victims surviving daughter in a unsolved case, to get counseling, seek closure, to move on. execution wouldnt solve what ailed her.

I've witnessed grieving mothers, children here on a prisoners last day of visits. its forever burnt into my brain. This is not right what we persue as civilised society, in the name of justice. life & life w/out parole is a suitable alternative.