Prison lifestyle is treacherous! no matter where you go somebody having a bad day, and tries to cut your throats. We're all in the same boat, from the level 1 and to the level 3 and 4, we all wear the color blue. When you start out, you're in orange, it's called reception, no privileges, but got cell phones in your possession. It don't take much, for anyone to make a mess walking on the yard, there's potholes where you're seeing stabbings, that'll leave any man speechless. It's a prison! everyday it's not gonna be cream & pecan. Puncture a lung, may even hit that vein in your neck, adrenaline, and hyperventilation, got you gasping for air. Starting riots with other races, aint no time for "cool". The rest start charging at you, like they were U.S. when the screaming start, and they start to charge. Many are not prepared, and are left with permanent scars. Everyday they look in the mirror, they'll always remember that awful day, mixing food for you in a blender. How 200 inmates were involved, fed you through a tube. How it was a nightmare, when they were chasing after you. Some of the stuff you go through, will make you cut your hair. That's prison life my friends! so enter at your own risk!
