Hello Lavender,

Thank you for your kind assistance with transcriptions, concern, and moral support. I have lived the past 30 plus years of my life in a state of constant depression AND a struggle daily to maintain what sanity I have left as I seek help to overcome being falsely imprisoned. Your kind transcription of the August 9, 2012, post SPOTLIGHTING THE FIVE TRIAL LEVEL ATTORNEYS is a prime example of my struggle.

In November, 2013, I read an article in Time Magazine 'Power to the People What's next for Ben Ratliff's disruptive Change.org' - by Noah Rayman. I immediately recognized this as a way to spotlight the five trial level attorneys and came up with a plan of action. The plan was to petition the attorneys AND coordinate the petitions with blog entries - Thus using the petitions to bring attention to the blog and raise myself out of obscurity. The one flaw that still remains is that I do/ did not have reliable support to accomplish this goal...

I am currently waiting on news of my third attempt at this goal - The initial information appeared good only to be followed by a long period of silence that is disheartening. Unless I am able to create the influence to compel the five trial level attorneys to respond to the evidence they will all have to admit vindicates me of any kind of murder. I will remain falsely imprisoned waiting to be put to death. That is depressing!!! I too hope I get some kind of answers soon. Thank you again lavender.

Love to you and for you
