To FAYTE5879,

I love you too, and I hope you know that's never going to change. You're on my mind all the time--and I swear it seems like we think of each other at the same times too, because I'll be thinking of you like crazy, and then suddenly I'll hear from you. Look at one of my recent posts, the one about the visitation update. Do you realize I was typing that the same day you typed your comment? I'm pretty sure I did. And that's not the first time such a thing has happened to us, it's sweet, but eerie.

You're the only one that could ever make me question my beliefs, and actually think there's something to this Fate thing.

As for visits, everything is back to normal, you could come anytime you wanted. Broad River only has Saturday and Sunday visits though, no Fridays right now. We could get a new picture made of us ... I'd like that. You and my grandmother could ride down sometime maybe, she still asks me about you from time to time.

On the subject of this blog, sometimes I get the comment in less than two weeks, and at other times it can take 90 days since random mail here is sometimes sent to the CRC, Correspondence Review Committee (they check over mail to ensure there is no security issue with mail that the local prison mail staff are unsure of, and internet material is one of the things they review a good bit. Policy and law allows us up to 5 pages of internet material per envelope.). Sometimes, the mail just goes missing.... But, I assure you I'll write when I can, and I am aware of the comment.

We get email now in the prison dorms, on computer kiosks they installed. The site is:

inmateconnect.com

Hope to hear from you again soon.

Always,
Your Johnny
