Greetings, yes I got a bad history, so does the Southern Baptist, who "endorsed slavery." Where was the compassion in that?

I went to a Christian, Baptist, school who showed me a film, when I was 10 or 11 year's old of a Biker who was burning in hell, skin melting, maggots coming out of his skin, screaming in horror and pain. After the film, the preacher said, IF you do not accept Christ and obey him, you will end up there. Most of the kids who were 6 to 18 year's old, only thought of themselves. Me - I had just lost my Bigma (Grandmother) she drank, smoked killed 2 men and went to prison for it, in Georgia, she gave me Pornograph Hustler magazine's back in 75, 76, 77. She was my world growing up. She raised me in the early years. Why those kids are thinking of themselves, which was what the film was designed to do. put fear into your heart. Thinking back on it (now) it was no more than child abuse. When that preacher said that, I thought of my Bigma burning in hell, screaming as worms busted through her skin. I was hurt outraged and angry like I have never been before or since. I didn't fear God, I didn't love Christ. I hated them for torturing my Bigma, yeah that showed me something, and it wasn't compassion!

so bottom line, is I've had moments with the church, and christianity, and they weren't good.

you be good, stay out of trouble and enjoy life.

IN Peace + Love  Bonnie
