Every man and every woman is a star.

Pax Vobiscum,

In the last several weeks so much crap has come about, my daughter whom I love dearly was doing good since moving to N.C., keeping herself clean and holding a job, things that would help her regain custody of her children in due time.

Well she seems to have hooked up with some young boy around (22) yrs old, Ten years younger than herself. This young idiot turns out to be an abusive bum, and not only this, but Sarah endangered the lives of her own mother and child by telling this coward that her mother said he was an Evil person.

At first I tried to get her some help through personal contacts of mine beyond these walls; gave her a way to get out of this abusive relationship - then she turns and lies on my little Brother, thus it's clear that she's made her choice.

Her mother and son was forced to move back to MO in order to be with my youngest daughter; and with her oldest daughter whom could help her raise and care for Sarah's child. And she'd be safe from this monster whom Sarah chose over her own child.

I am greatly disappointed by Sarah's actions, I find it quite disturbing that a mother would actually put her own children's lives in danger, that she would endanger her own mother's life when her mother did all she could to help her and give her a new lease on life itself in another state. We believed in her only to have her spit in our faces choosing instead drugs and some evil coward to shack up with. So sad it is that this child of my heart and soul has fallen so deep into the abyss of addiction, she possesses no Dignity, Integrity nor morals what-so-ever.

Will she ever find her way back to the land of the living (or) remain lost to the world of the dead? I can only hope with all my heart and soul that one day she will be resurrected from the grave she now resides in, that one day the light of the Sun will once again shine forth from her cold dark eyes.

"Ever New Home"

Creepin' crawling inside your disease ingested brain,
Paranoia swims like some malignant cancerous cell,
Inside your head - life so insane. Sanity seeps away as you sink into your own torturous hell.

Run as fast as you can, but there's no escape from yourself; your very life has become someone else's upon a shelf. Drip drop, flip flop - How far will your morality drop.

Locked away inside a cold dark prison - the one inside your itchy-bitzy head; shadows dancing 'round, (your only friends, the ever present voices chattering inside your head.

Come as you are & heed my call, how deep into the abyss must you fall? Deep within lies evil's dark and fetid well - the bells begin to sound loudly as the Morning Star arrives to lead you unto your new home - Hell.

"Where Darkness Hides"

Hopelessly crawling toward life's ledge, slipping and sliding along the razor's bloody edge.

I can hear the rustle of the angel's wings, tearing through flesh and veins; Ah! How sweet the razor stings.

No matter how hard I try to please me, it never seems to be enough - does nothing but warrant their condemnation and penalties per diem.

Trapped in a world so cold and cruel, surrounded by hundreds yet I'm still alone. Everyday life grows darker, hours on end spent dodging stone after stone.

Without remorse of vow to take every blow, no matter how painful it may be; accepting my fate with each stone that you throw. Deep within I've come to realize; I am nothing in your eyes.

I know it's only karma taking its course, since of my past it's sole source. She shadowed mysteries behind each blow; none but you will ever know.

Use and abuse me - guess that's just how life was meant to be. When deep within I know there are no innocence, we're all guilty - yet it makes no sense to me.

Thousands of lies and sweet sounding lullabies.
When death comes to claim her long awaited prize, I know there'll be no sad goodbyes; for deep within the human heart is where darkness truly hides.
