

God or god?

7-22-14

Humans can live without oxygen for minutes, without water for days and without food for months. But with our make-up as spiritual beings, we cannot live at all without God or a god of our own blueprint. We either live with the God of Scripture or create a god whom we perceive to meet our needs.

There are many who turn their careers into a god. For them, work supersedes everything, including family & friends (family). And without their knowledge, money becomes their blessing and the rewards they ferret out. Yet, they find no satisfaction in the things they accumulate because they ~~temporarily~~ produce temporary fulfillment, thus, leaving them chasing satisfaction once again. Can you say merry-go-round?

There are some who make pleasure their god. Thrill seekers investigating the next adventure. A journey to a far land, a life filled with bright lights (Hollywood), endless entertainment or death-defying experiences. To them, this is the sum and substance of a life worth living. But, in my opinion, it is a life that eventually becomes empty because enough is never enough.

And there are some who look for the resolution to the emptiness of life in mind or mood altering chemicals. (The very thing that I am guilty of) Whether it is an alcoholic beverage, an upper or a downer, a new high or different reality does not matter. The next fix or bigger dose is never enough. Life ends unfulfilled & bottomless resulting in death or imprisonment. I'm writing from personal experience. The god in chemicals does not bring peace. Our sorrows increase as we run after other gods. There are no other gods who can satisfy the longing of our hearts except One, the God of Scripture.

P.S.

I'm diligently seeking a pen-pal/friend to correspond with. Prisoners get lonely too!
All I want is too communicate with someone on the outside.
My address is listed. Hope to hear from you! 😊
