

Should I Continue?

I have been doing the psycho-therapy thing again.
So I apologise for being absent so long...
I am terribly hard to psycho-analyze and work with.
I'm quick to give up

So it takes a while, to make any progress... how long it goes on greatly depends on my family/friend support network, which is not big and strong at this time...

and also of course BLOGGING is hard when you are a secluded, creature of routine. I try to say only the most interesting things and make the funniest jokes, but this environment doesn't ooze creativity...

I can finally send E-mails, it's horribly expensive @ 1$ an email. Yes I said (one) Dollar American... But for some people it's totally worth it... I am not sure how the reception of email goes, if it charges the sender I won't ever give out the address because that's extortion in my eyes to charge such an amount both in and out on something that otherwise is free.
I will be back to drawing more, soon,
it will be without color for a while,
as I am out of colors ☹️

But my doodles are funny just the same in black & white....

Please don't give up on me guys, I'm getting better...

