Letter to Rui

Hey Rui,

I'm glad to find that my art + posts succeeded in capturing the attention of someone as far away as Portugal! 😊

There are good wolves in prison, as you suggested, and I'm fortunate to have met a couple. Alas, for the most part, I've wound up with teeth marks on my hands.

One good wolf helped get me hired as a tutor. At first the teachers who interviewed me doubted that I, whom they presumed to be anti-Black/Brown (vs. pro-White... for lack of a better word), would be able or willing to work with the mostly Black + a few Brown (Hispanic) students they had. (The teachers were + are both Black females, fyi). But the students like me + I like working with them. So... even supposedly bad wolves can be good. The guy who helped me (by telling his buddy to put in a good word for me) get the job was a co-founder of the Aryan Brotherhood of Texas, a group that much like my former pack (the Aryan Circle), has become a blight to the White race, contrary to its founders' purposes.

But all that's another story, which I will get into in great detail, sooner or later.

It is very true that I often feel alone, even though there's around a thousand people around me. Very few can or do appreciate what I appreciate, and so many are so desperate: for drugs, for sex, for power, for freedom.... But, as you said, I can cope with it; I have, + used my time fairly constructively, to master drawing, poetry and educate myself in ways I probably wouldn't have if caught up in the rat race that is most "free" peoples' lives.

Nice to meet you. Please stay in touch, and thank you for you intelligent thoughts.
