

Detroit Lions vs Cincinnati Bengals in Superbowl 49

Hey, I had a full technicolor dream the Lions were playing the Bengals in a very good game and I was watching it on T.V. However sometime during the game, the announcers started talking about how they couldn't believe the Lions were playing such a good game against the Bengals in Superbowl 49. That is when I woke up thinking no way. I mean even though the Bengals have gone to playoffs every year since drafting Andy Dalton they have yet to win a playoff game and no one even thinks of the Lions going to the playoffs, let alone a Superbowl. The last time I had a technicolor dream about the NFL I dreamed the Giants beat the ~~undefeated~~ undefeated Patriots in the Superbowl and as we all know, that happened. It is actually on the outer edges of possibilities. After all the only thing the Bengals need is a second receiver and for Andy Dalton not to make so many mistakes in the playoffs. Detroit has a good team, they just need to strengthen their secondary. Look, I know this is a long shot pick for the Superbowl but if both teams make the playoffs - watch out and remember you heard it here first. 😊 No, I don't know who wins the game but good Bengals 😊. Take care. Peace 😊 Donny