Melanie, thank you for your comments about my article. I write from the heart and the teenage suicide topic is close to my heart. I also hope that my comments will help someone past the point of despair, OOPS, I think that came out weird. I truly hope it helps someone turn away from suicide. I am thinking about putting a small poetry book on a free website which was set up to help prisoners get their works published so I'll give you the website address, it will take me a couple months to get everything to them. You can read just about all my poetry on this blog site. Please don't be offended but I write novels also and I'm willing to give $20,000.00 out of $50,000.00 minimum ~~to~~ a publisher would give me for the right to publish me. Maybe if you aren't interested you might know someone who is, I'm willing to send a notarized promissary letter to the person to make it legal. All they would have to do is type the introductory letter, the complete outline of the book and the first 3 chapters of the book. Make copies and mail it to 15 or 20 publishing companies, all this would cost less than $200.00 to do.
