Hello Ron (RonG123),

"I'm enjoying what I'm reading. 'Looking forward to reading more."

Music to my ears cannot sound any better. To receive such a comment and kind words is the icing on the millennial cake this writer has been waiting to see, hear or read, as most writers do after writing for so long without getting that validation.

To actually receive news that someone actually enjoys something that I wrote is prize worthy news, very valuable and much appreciated.

This is strong validation for me that I have finally done something right.

I appreciate your true honesty and I am pleased and grateful that you are looking forward to reading more. I just hope I can continue writing pieces you will enjoy. Again, thank you for your comments.

Know that your comments may not reach me right away or can take several weeks, months even (I received your comments today, 11-10-14) but I shall always respond to any comments.

Keep your comments coming. They make my time a little easier to know someone actually enjoys my writing. They also encourage me to move forward during my dark times and I am very humbled by them.

Happy holidays

Your friend,

Keith
