

domestic united states of america workers self determination struggle, under current conditions to be successful must combine every effective aspect of the historical workers self determination struggle within the domestic united states of america, & this all within the current social, economic, political, societal context, the character of the failure of the domestic united states of america workers self determination struggle, was that of over centralization, what it will take to reverse this failure, is a civil struggle against absentee authority in the workplace, in the family, at school, & in the community, to give control to the people who live & work there, this as revolutionary nonviolent direct democracy, & decentralization, these tactics are characterize by civil disobedience & direct action protest, & localized & regional underground fifth column cells which act as workers self determination struggle defense forces, against the anti workers self determination struggle violence of the corporate & police states, post for http://betweenthebars.org/blogs/1491