

"A Pillar of Loneliness"

POETRY
2015

My time here is numbered
Kept by a Strange team of doctors
Ones that seem robotic
If they only knew laughter is the best medicine
Looking out my window
I see a darkened sky
A feeling of helplessness over takes the moment
Wind whips through the foliage
Springing back & forth its antenna like structures
I remind myself sometimes nature sets unwanted-
Emotions within us with its cold momentum
Can I put on paper what others can feel too
Without offending & then having to be apologetic
I just wish I had a little sparrow friend
That would land on the outside of my window
Bringing me a bit of cheer to warm my soul
OR to suggest that God is not far away
And could remove my Pillar of loneliness
