Re: I MEMORY OF SARAH E. SURRATT (6/2/1982 - 7/20/2015)

- "Listen" -

Listen closely My beloved friend, to the soft, whispering wind, hear how it bears my thoughts, my love, and prayers for you,
A subtle wind that knows all we've been through.

Listen closely and you'll hear this heart's every beat, as they soar upon the wind,
The messenger of my soul kneeling before your feet.

Feel them as they dance before you;
My thoughts, my love, my prayers accompany you in all you do.

Listen closely My beloved daughter and friend, to that soft whispering wind.

Riding upon it you'll find a gift especial for you,
A love and friendship without end,
For this old heart, long ago you stepped into.

- David Z. Bangvess - 1/23/2011

This piece I wrote long ago for My daughter Sarah; since my last entry she has parted this world, and all I enter this day is in honour and memorial to her.

She flies now with her own wings,
The spirit rests among the stars.

Aglaia

*Beautiful and bright were your precious smiles,
Your laughter a warm blanket of love,
In the darkest of days; My guiding light,
Surely you were a gift, a blessing from above.*

Ever near in heart and soul, your love for me Never faltered,

No matter how rocky the roads of life, or turbulent the winds of change; Father & Daughter, the best of friends, Our bond never altered.

My beloved daughter and friend you have always been; My little sidekick; My Precious little Pumkin' through thick and thin.

*That hearty laughter, those warm, glowing smiles,
The heavens know, they've helped me walk through some dark and long treacherous miles.*

*Now here I sit, torn, cold, and all alone,
My beloved daughter and friend - From this cruel*

world I've just heard, you are now gone.

Without you here - My pain grows without end.

Among heavenly host I'm sure you now reside,

forever in my heart you'll ever abide,

As among celestial shores I know you now dance,

The brightest Star I have no doubt, sure I could spot you with but one quick glance.

Oh, but the pain! So unfair, so tragic your sudden departure.

No warning, not one sign, deep within the pain - My heart sure to rupture.

What I'd give for one last talk, simple idle chat.

One last chance to hold your small hand, to discuss your ideas, your dreams, or to design some new tat.

To hear that warm and loving laughter,

Aglaia

*Oh, My Dear - That beautiful smile.
My Precious Daughter, Beloved Friend,
What I'd give to sit with you again —
Oh, just for a little while.*

*In memory of my Beloved Daughter & Friend
