

Nate's News: Back in Boscobel created 15 Sept. 2015

by Nate Lindell #303724 WSPF P.O. Box 9900, Boscobel, WI 53805

On Aug. 25th, I arrived back in WI's stupor max, almost two months after the Wisconsin State Journal (madison.com) ran a letter of mine in which I pointed out how WI's prison system could only see fit to keep me in solitary confinement for 13+ years, the feds let me in g.p. + had me tutoring special-needs GED students.

On my second day here, the warden came to see me + told me he'd read that letter +, although I'd be on Admin. Confinement at first, he wanted to use my 144 I.Q. constructively, such as by tutoring GED students. He also said "they" were going to start a mentoring program that I could be part of. Time will reveal how true this is, but I gladly agreed to help in these ways.

In the meantime, I had so many bad experiences here: years of being unable to shave, without deodorant; able to mail out only one letter a week; my only visits from a sere Jehovah's Witness; asshole inmates pounding on my wall so I can't sleep or think + yelling insults, for days on end; asshole staff piling b.s. write-ups on me, so I can't get out of Admin. Confinement status; no outdoor view from my cell; outside rec. only twice a week, if the weather's "nice", if it's not a holiday on the rec. day... if staff feel like it; at the time, without a T.V. in my cell... etc. Little's changed with the conditions here, nothing actually, other than the warden's assurance that they're no longer trying to keep guys on Admin. Confinement for years, + I have a T.V. ....

Been panicking, feeling like I'm buried alive. On the verge of assaulting staff to make them send me to another prison system, how I got to the fed. system. But Dr. Hoem here + the warden have tried to help me deal with being alive in a tomb + sort out issues with my property so my books, photos + writings aren't destroyed, so I'm repaying that decency.

As noted in accompanying articles, without someone buying me postage-embossed envelopes, I won't be posting more articles; I can't.
