

"This is A TEST of the Emergency Broadcast NETWORK"

We should ALL be prepared for the test God brings into our lives. I've found it a great help to recognize certain people, situations, and circumstances as the test they represent.

God has recently restored me to my right mind after a bout of horrendous depression, what was for me truly my Dark Hour of the Soul. He is busy growing me up like never before. I have rarely, if ever, seen with such clarity. I've had to purpose in my heart to take it easy because I find myself in a hurry to lap up ALL these new found insights into His word, other people, and myself.

In the midst of this I've been dealt one hardship after another. The person I was closest to turned on me in a manner which shook me to the core. That person was also my main source of support. Now gone! Then I was "checked" and basically I inferred I was to be cut off from ^{EXCEPT ONE} ALL other sources of material support. ALL this while I'm really at the highest level of sanctification ever!

The world... → I must focus and Trust God for my warmth and comfort, after all, He has proven He cares and He never fails me! Russ
