

Reply I.D.: cr4d

And so we have a new addition to the family ☺ how joyous! I shared your description of the baby's letter with Josh, and we both with our artistic inclinations of course envisioned it right away, and with that came many smiles, as we could perceive your and Simonne's faces as you read it. We were curious as to why there was no godfather... doesn't Elke realize that we are just as good at spoiling the little ones? After reading of the caesarean, we are both of the agreement that if men and women alternated in having the children, no family would have more than three.

On another happy note, we have just completed a little gift for you, and because of its size, I'm going to send it to mon pere, et he will repackage it to you. We were experiencing with a variety of techniques et styles un day, just goofing off, et je told him "let's take this watercolor paper et see what we can come up with", et now c'est done, so hopefully it will show up at your doorstep around your birthday, et tu will enjoy it as much as we did in creating it.

Je also shared your good news with Josh, et he's looking forward to hearing from votre amie. Tu say she has a beautiful name; what could be more lovely than Rita....

As for Jude, I wonder if he met Too'Tall before he left Centralia? Je hope he'll be in touch via the blog as well, et the next time you're in touch avec Sallie, share mon greetings, s'il vous plait.

Janvier had now come et gone, et I'm looking forward to nicer weather, so je can head out to the track, though if your foot's not healed, je s'pose you'll have to run in spirit only. Has your treatment of it helped? We have to get tu fixed up, as the warm days are just around the corner ☺ see them peeking at us? There they are...

Mon pere sends his best wishes, while je enclose a fresh batch of hugs et kisses, as well as some Reiki pour votre foot... get well, little one. Till je hear from tu, remember... sometimes be sharp, never be flat, et always be natural.